INSTRUCTIONS TO COURT-APPOINTED COUNSELYOUR APPOINTMENT

The Court maintains a list of attorneys who have indicated a desire to be appointed as defense counsel for indigents charged with a criminal offense. As nearly as practical, a rotation system is used; however, consideration is also given to the complexity of the charge and the experience of counsel in making the appointment.

COSTS

In the interest of reducing the expense to the taxpayers of the Second Judicial Circuit for the defense of indigents it is expected that as nearly as practicable your representation shall be governed by the following:

1. Give notice to and/or schedule depositions at the same time as that set by the Public Defender representing a co-defendant.

2. Plan schedule far enough in advance of trial to preclude the necessity of expediting the preparation of transcripts. Generally, two weeks are required to insure transcript preparation. All depositions shall be taken by an official court reporter unless otherwise authorized by the presiding judge. If you request expedited transcripts or use a court reporter other than an official without prior approval of the court, you will have to pay for the reporting and the transcript.

3. Obtain Court approval before engaging the service of any expert witness.

APPEALS

Your responsibility to your client does not terminate with a verdict of guilty or acceptance of a guilty plea by the Court. In each instance an appellate review may be accomplished. You should discuss with your client the prospect of such a review. If he waives his right to appeal, be sure he does so intelligently after being fully informed of all relevant matters; and, to preserve the record, have him do so in writing. Thereafter, there can be no doubt about the absence of an appeal. See Moore vs. State 298 So.2d 561 (1st DCA).

The record on appeal will require the preparation of a transcript of the trial and/or other court proceedings. In most cases, you will represent a co-defendant, who may also prosecute an appeal. To avoid the preparation and cost of two original transcripts of the same proceeding, coordinate your directions to the Clerk and Motion for Transcript with co-defendant's counsel.

FEES

To insure the payment to you of a fee it is necessary that you complete your service and, in the event an appeal is to be prosecuted, by your accomplishing the following:

1. Motion for New Trial - File and have determined by the Court.
2. Notice of Appeal - File.
3. Assignments of Error - File.
4. Directions to the Clerk - File.
5. Motion for Transcript - File.
6. Affidavit of Insolvency. If not previously accomplished, have client execute an appropriate affidavit of insolvency for appellate purposes. The form may be obtained from the Clerk's office.
7. Be certain that an order is entered appointing the Public Defender, Second Judicial Circuit, for purpose of appeal.
8. Forward an information copy of each of the above seven filings to the Public Defender, Second Judicial Circuit.

Upon motion to the Court showing that you have completed your service, including the foregoing, an appropriate fee will be awarded. Your motion should certify the services rendered, time spent, costs incurred and any other relevant matter to reflect a basis for a fee allowance. Affidavits of other experienced attorneys regarding reasonable fees should also be filed in support of your motion. FORMS FOR THIS PURPOSE MAY BE OBTAINED FROM THE OFFICE OF THE CLERK.
